Sustainability statement

For a sustainable world, we see it as our responsibility to design comfortable, practical and inspiring buildings and spaces that make a positive contribution to the environment and to the quality of all our lives.

We recognise that the products of our consultancy will have far greater potential environmental impact than our own operations. We are therefore committed to exercising our professional skills in such a way as to minimise our environmental impact and protect the environment as far as the scope of our activities and the instructions of our clients allow.

We are committed to providing a service that ensures a safe and healthy workplace for our employees and visitors and which minimises our potential impact on the environment. We will operate in compliance with all relevant environmental legislation and we will strive to use best practice in pollution prevention in all that we do.

The environmental performance of the places, buildings and landscapes we create is a primary consideration, and statutory control is making a holistic sustainable approach an imperative for us all.

From the start of the briefing and design process, we therefore concentrate on making sure that we identify the maximum potential environmental performance possible from the initial brief, with the result that we often exceed our clients' aspirations with the completed project.

With rapidly increasing emphasis being placed on the environmental impact of all our activities – our own housekeeping as well as our design and consultancy work – we need to make sure we are well organised in the way in which we gain the necessary knowledge and experience to deliver our service.

Innovation is synonymous with design, just as consideration of sustainability is essential to good design. Innovation is about challenging, probing and questioning to find the best solution, the most environmentally-friendly approach.

This is why, as a practice, we recognise the importance of innovation, creativity and vision as key tools in improving the quality of sustainable design that we deliver.
